STATE OF TEXAS, et al.,)
Defendants.)	Referred to U.S. Magistrate Judge¹

FINDINGS, CONCLUSIONS, AND RECOMMENDATION

Based on the relevant filings and applicable law, the plaintiff's complaint should be DISMISSED with prejudice.

I. BACKGROUND

Robert Burns McCall (Plaintiff), an inmate in the Lamb County Jail, sues the State of Texas, the state district judge, the prosecutor, and his attorney (collectively Defendants) under 42 U.S.C. § 1983 for allegedly violating his civil rights during his prosecution for sexual assault of a child under 14. (See doc. 3 at 1, 3-4.)² He claims that he was falsely convicted of that offense on November 18, 1991, after Defendants hid the evidence that would have proven his innocence, sealed the proof, and blocked his attempts to receive copies of that proof. (Id. at 4.) He alleges that the judge “coerced, intimidated and illegally sentenced [him] without evidence of guilt” to 25 years’ imprisonment, after which Plaintiff was civilly committed in the Texas Civil Commitment Center until he no longer demonstrated a “behavior abnormality.” (Id. at 3-4.) He seeks a copy of the evidence and $250 million dollars. (Id.) No process has issued.

II. PRELIMINARY SCREENING

Plaintiff is a prisoner who has been permitted to proceed in forma pauperis. As a prisoner seeking redress from an officer of a governmental entity, his complaint is subject to preliminary screening pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915A. See Martin v. Scott, 156 F.3d 578, 579-80 (5th Cir. 1998). Because he is proceeding in forma pauperis, his complaint is also subject to screening under § 1915(e)(2). Both § 1915(e)(2)(B) and § 1915A(b) provide for sua sponte dismissal of the complaint, or any portion thereof, if the Court finds it is frivolous or malicious, if it fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, or if it seeks monetary relief against a defendant who is immune from such relief.

A complaint is frivolous when it “lacks an arguable basis either in law or in fact.” Neitzke v. Williams, 490 U.S. 319, 325 (1989). A claim lacks an arguable basis in law when it is “based on an indisputably meritless legal theory.” Id. at 327. A complaint fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted when it fails to plead “enough facts to state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007); accord Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009).

III. SECTION 1983

Plaintiff seeks monetary damages under 42 U.S.C. § 1983. That section “provides a federal cause of action for the deprivation, under color of law, of a citizen’s ‘rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws’ of the United States” and “afford[s] redress for violations of federal statutes, as well as of constitutional norms.” Livadas v. Bradshaw, 512 U.S. 107, 132 (1994). To state a claim under § 1983, Plaintiff must allege facts that show (1) he has been deprived of a right secured by the Constitution and the laws of the United States; and (2) the deprivation occurred under color of state law. See Flagg Bros., Inc. v. Brooks, 436 U.S. 149, 155 (1978); Cornish v. Corr. Servs. Corp., 402 F.3d 545, 549 (5th Cir. 2005).

A. Statute of Limitations

Courts “may raise the defense of limitations sua sponte.” Harris v. Hegmann, 198 F.3d 153, 156 (5th Cir. 1999). “[W]here it is clear from the face of a complaint filed in forma pauperis that the claims asserted are barred by the applicable statute of limitations, those claims are properly dismissed” under 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2)(B). Gartrell v. Gaylor, 981 F.2d 254, 256 (5th Cir. 1993); accord, Stanley v. Foster, 464 F.3d 565, 568 (5th Cir. 2006).

Federal courts look to the law of the forum state to determine the length of the statute of limitations applicable in § 1983 cases. Wallace v. Kato, 549 U.S. 384, 387 (2007). The general statute of limitations governing personal injuries in the forum state provides the applicable limitations period. Piotrowski v. City of Houston, 237 F.3d 567, 576 (5th Cir. 2001). Texas has a two-year statute of limitations for personal injury claims, so Plaintiff had two years from the date his claims accrued to file suit. Id.; accord Hatchet v. Nettles, 201 F.3d 651, 653 (5th Cir. 2000).

While state law determines the length of the § 1983 limitations period, federal law determines the accrual date. Wallace, 549 U.S. at 388; Walker v. Epps, 550 F.3d 407, 414 (5th Cir. 2008). Generally, a claim accrues when the plaintiff has “a complete and present cause of action”, or “when the plaintiff can file suit and obtain relief.” Wallace, 549 U.S. at 388 (citation and internal quotation marks omitted).

“Under federal law, the [limitations] period begins to run ‘the moment the plaintiff becomes aware that he has suffered an injury or has sufficient information to know that he has been injured.’” A plaintiff’s awareness encompasses two elements: “(1) The existence of the injury; and (2) causation, that is, the connection between the injury and the defendant's actions." A plaintiff need not know that she has a legal cause of action; she need know only the facts that would ultimately support a claim. Actual knowledge is not required "if the circumstances would lead a reasonable person to investigate further."

Piotrowski, 237 F.3d at 576 (citations omitted); Walker, 550 F.3d at 414. A plaintiff's cause of action accrues, and the limitations period begins to run, when he knew or had reason to know of the injury that is the basis of his action. Gonzales v. Wyatt, 157 F.3d 1016, 1020 (5th Cir. 1998).

Here, Plaintiff alleges that as a result of Defendants' actions in hiding evidence, he was wrongfully convicted on November 18, 1991. Because he knew or had reason to know of the injury that is the basis of his action on that date, his claim accrued on that date, and the limitations period began to run. See Martinez v. Snyder, No. 3:18-CV-3094-G, 2019 WL 1767638, at *1-2 (N.D. Tex. Jan. 30, 2019) (finding that the plaintiff's claim that he was wrongfully convicted accrued when his trial concluded). Because he signed his complaint on August 26, 2019, almost 28 years later, his claims are barred by limitations, absent equitable tolling.

The applicable limitations period may be equitably tolled in appropriate circumstances. See Rotella v. Pederson, 144 F.3d 892, 897 (5th Cir. 1998). "[W]hen state statutes of limitation are borrowed, state tolling principles are to be the 'primary guide' of the federal court. The federal court may disregard the state tolling rule only if it is inconsistent with federal policy." See FDIC v. Dawson, 4 F.3d 1303, 1309 (5th Cir. 1993) (citations omitted). Equitable tolling preserves a plaintiff's claims where strict application of the statute of limitations would be inequitable. Lambert v. United States, 44 F.3d 296, 298 (5th Cir. 1995). However, federal law requires that litigants diligently pursue their actions before equitable tolling becomes available. See Coleman v. Johnson, 184 F.3d 398, 403 (5th Cir. 1999); Covey v. Arkansas River Co., 865

F.2d 660, 662 (5th Cir. 1989) (“equity is not intended for those who sleep on their rights”).

Equitable tolling is appropriate in cases where a plaintiff is actively misled by the defendant or is prevented in some extraordinary way from asserting his rights. See Rashidi v. American President Lines, 96 F.3d 124, 128 (5th Cir. 1996).

Plaintiff does not allege any basis for equitable tolling. He has not shown that he has diligently pursued his claims, or extraordinary circumstances that warrant equitable tolling. A complaint that is barred by limitations is frivolous and fails to state a claim. See Pantoja v. Fort Worth Texas Police Dept., 543 F. App’x 379, 379-80 (5th Cir. 2013) (affirming district court’s dismissal of time-barred complaint as frivolous and for failure to state a claim).

B. Judicial immunity

The Supreme Court has recognized absolute immunity for judges acting in the performance of their judicial duties. See Nixon v. Fitzgerald, 457 U.S. 731, 745–46 (1982). Judges are immune from suit for damages resulting from any judicial act. Mireles v. Waco, 502 U.S. 9, 11–12 (1991). Allegations of bad faith or malice do not overcome judicial immunity. Id. at 11. A plaintiff can overcome the bar of judicial immunity only under two very limited circumstances. See Mireles, 502 U.S. at 11–12; see also Boyd v. Biggers, 31 F.3d 279, 284 (5th Cir. 1994).

First, a judge is not immune from suit for actions that are not “judicial” in nature. See Mireles, 502 U.S. at 11. “[W]hether an act by a judge is a ‘judicial’ one relate[s] to the nature of the act itself, i.e., whether it is a function normally performed by a judge, and to the expectations of the parties, i.e., whether they dealt with the judge in his judicial capacity.” Davis v. Tarrant County, Tex., 565 F.3d 214, 222 (5th Cir. 2009) (quoting Mireles, 502 U.S. at 12). “[T]he relevant inquiry is the ‘nature’ and ‘function’ of the act, not the ‘act itself.’ In other words, [a court should] look to the particular act’s relation to a general function normally performed by a judge” Id.

[The Fifth Circuit] has adopted a four-factor test for determining whether a judge’s actions were judicial in nature: (1) whether the precise act complained of is a normal judicial function; (2) whether the acts occurred in the courtroom or appropriate adjunct spaces such as the judge’s chambers; (3) whether the controversy centered around a case pending before the court; and (4) whether the acts arose directly out of a visit to the judge in his official capacity. These factors are broadly construed in favor of immunity.

Davis, 565 F.3d at 222–23 (citations omitted). “‘The absence of one or more factors will not prevent a determination that judicial immunity applies.’” Thomas v. State, 294 F.Supp. 3d 576, 600 (N.D. Tex. 2018) (quoting Carter v. Carter, No. 3:13-CV-2939-D (BF), 2014 WL 803638, at *1 (N.D. Tex. Feb. 20, 2014) (citing Ballard v. Wall, 413 F.3d 510, 515 (5th Cir. 2005))).

Second, a judge is not immune from suit for actions that although judicial in nature, are taken in the complete absence of all jurisdiction. See Mireles, 502 U.S. at 12; see also Malina v. Gonzales, 994 F.2d 1121, 1124 (5th Cir. 1993).

Here, Plaintiff alleges that the judge “coerced, intimidated and illegally sentenced [him] without evidence of guilt.” (doc. 3 at 3.) Sentencing defendants is a function normally performed by a judge under the jurisdiction provided to the court. Moreover, judicial immunity applies even when a judge is accused of acting maliciously or corruptly. See Pierson v. Ray, 386 US 547, 554 (1967). The judge has absolute immunity from Plaintiff’s claims for monetary damages, even if they are not time-barred.

C. Prosecutorial Immunity

Prosecutors enjoy absolute immunity to initiate and pursue criminal prosecutions. See

Imbler v. Pachtman, 424 U.S. 409, 430–31 (1976). Prosecutors are entitled to absolute immunity for acts taken to initiate prosecution, even against allegations that they acted “maliciously, wantonly, or negligently.” Rykers v. Alford, 832 F.2d 895, 897 (5th Cir. 1987) (citing Morrison v. City of Baton Rouge, 761 F.2d 242, 248 (5th Cir. 1985)). The Supreme Court has recognized that a prosecutor has only qualified immunity with respect to his or her administrative and investigative duties. Buckley v. Fitzsimmons, 509 U.S. 259, 269 (1993).

Plaintiff alleges that the prosecutor “hid forensic evidence that would have proven [his] innocence.” (doc. 3 at 3.) Even assuming the truth of the allegations, Plaintiff has not alleged that the prosecutor acted other than in her adjudicative role as a prosecutor, so she is entitled to absolute prosecutorial immunity. See Morris v. Combs, No. 4:13-CV-532-O, 2013 WL 5595962, at *2 (N.D. Tex. Oct. 11, 2013) (finding that allegations of a Brady violation were made against the prosecutor in his adjudicative role, so he was entitled to absolute prosecutorial immunity from any claim for monetary damages).

D. No State Action

With regard to Plaintiff’s claims against the attorney who represented him in the state criminal proceeding, it is well-established that an attorney does not act under color of state law in representing a defendant at trial or on direct appeal. See Polk County v. Dodson, 454 U.S. 312, 325 (1981) (holding that “a public defender does not act under color of state law when performing a lawyer’s traditional functions as counsel to a defendant in a criminal proceeding); Mills v. Crim. Dist. Ct. No. 3, 837 F.2d 677, 679 (5th Cir. 1988) (holding that “private attorneys, even court-appointed attorneys, are not official state actors, and generally are not subject to suit under section 1983”). A private party may be acting “under color of state law” and be held liable under § 1983 in certain circumstances, however. See Adickes v. S.H. Kress & Co., 398 U.S. 144, 152 (1970); Wong v. Stripling, 881 F.2d 200, 202 (5th Cir. 1989). In Priester v. Lowndes Cty., 354 F.3d 414 (5th Cir. 2004), cert. denied, 543 U.S. 829 (2004), the Fifth Circuit explained that “[f]or a private citizen . . . to be held liable under section 1983, the plaintiff must allege that the citizen conspired with or acted in concert with state actors.” Id. at 420 (citing Mylett v. Jeane, 879 F.2d 1272, 1275 (5th Cir. 1989) (per curiam)). The plaintiff must allege: (1) an agreement between the private and public defendants to commit an illegal act and (2) a deprivation of constitutional rights. Priester, 354 F.3d at 420; see also Avdeef, 616 F. App’x at 676. Allegations that are merely conclusory, without reference to specific facts, will not suffice. Id. (citing Brinkmann v. Johnston, 793 F.2d 111, 113 (5th Cir. 1986) (per curiam)).

Plaintiff alleges that his defense attorney aided in his conviction by refusing to use forensic evidence. (doc. 3 at 3.) Any decision not to use forensic evidence was made in his role as counsel. To the extent that Plaintiff’s allegations may be liberally construed as alleging that his attorney conspired with the prosecution, however, his claims are conclusory and devoid of specific facts. Plaintiff’s § 1983 claims against his defense attorney should be dismissed for failure to state a claim.

E. Not a Person

As noted, a plaintiff asserting a § 1983 claim must “demonstrate that the alleged deprivation was committed by a person acting under color of state law.” Whitley v. Hanna, 726 F.3d 631, 638 (5th Cir. 2013) (internal quotation marks omitted and emphasis added). “[A] State is not a person within the meaning of § 1983.” Will v. Michigan Dep’t of State Police, 491 U.S. 58, 65 (1989). Plaintiff therefore also fails to state a § 1983 claim against The State of Texas.

IV. RECOMMENDATION

Plaintiff's complaint should be summarily DISMISSED with prejudice under 28 U.S.C. §§ 1915(e)(2)(B)(i) and 1915A(b)(1). The dismissal of the complaint will count as a "strike" or "prior occasion" within the meaning 28 U.S.C. § 1915(g).³

³ Section 1915(g), which is commonly known as the "three-strikes" provision, provides:

In no event shall a prisoner bring a civil action or appeal a judgment in a civil action or proceeding under this section, if the prisoner has, on 3 or more prior occasions, while incarcerated or detained in any facility, brought an action or appeal in a court of the United States that was dismissed on the grounds that it is frivolous, malicious, or fails to state a claim upon which relief may be granted, unless the prisoner is under imminent danger of serious physical injury.
